I am running for TICA Ragdoll Breed Committee for 2021

Hello, my name is Kristy Goodloe. My husband Bryan Goodloe and I own Countryside Ragdolls. Our love for Ragdolls started back in 2011. Starting out as a new breeder we quickly found our passion for the education and the understanding of the Ragdoll breed. To this day we still advocate to those that we may help or mentor that education, above all, will help us all become better breeders.

The reason I am now running for the Ragdoll breed committee is first and foremost to see the Ragdoll stay a blue eyed pointed breed. I want to avoid us losing sight of what make Ragdolls so unique. Clarifying the standard doesn't change what the Ragdoll is meant to be. The beautiful deep blue eyes, sweet expression, long substantial body, easy to care for coat, and arguably most important trait...temperament. With the addition of the new standard changes I firmly believe we need a seminar that not only shows the intention of the changes but the perception behind the changes that were made. We are a breed that is global which means what is written in the English language does not always transition to other languages in a way that is understandable. Words are not enough. Hopefully by producing a seminar such as this we can eliminate such extreme Ragdolls we are seeing in the show halls. I sincerely hope to be a part of the committee that can put not only the voice to the standard but the example. We look forward to seeing everyone in the show halls as soon as we can!

Thank you for your time,

Kristy Goodloe (Countryside Ragdolls)
