basic structure
with light tabby markings

NOTE that any one of these alterations to traditional tabby suggest tiger.

Temple markings beyond eye brow markings are tiny and rare in domestics.

Toyger head markings and pattern.

Circular face markings in other than the tiger are not known in felines.
Modification of the traditional tabby face markings (radiating out and back from face) to circular seems to require different concentrations (genes) at this early time.

Whited ground is found in the tabby but not to the extent associated with the tiger or desirable in the Toyger.
